

The reporting on this election in the majority of the media is very biased; several productions showing Senator Kerry's bravery and which seem to be 'anti-war' have not been shown by media withdrawing them from outlets. Surely, it only seems fair that a depiction against Senator Kerry should be labeled 'a commercial' since it is certainly not a piece of journalism or 'even-handed', whatever that means. I am astounded at what's been going on in the media, especially during this election.
